THE NATIONAL REPUBLICAN HAS ARGER CIRCULATION THAN ANY OTHER MORNING PAPER IN THE DISTRICT OF CO-LUNEIA

WEDNESDAY MORNING......APRIL 21, 1875 THE Democrats denounce President Grant as a traitor. If he had been really a traitor in 1860-'65, they would be engaged in praising him now.

THE Council Bluffs (Iowa) Nonparell says: "Davenport is almost a unit for Belknap for Senator." It should be quite a unit. No better selection could be made

"SELF-DECEPTIVE" is Mr. Beecher's latest "apothegmatic" expression. It means that he knew that Bessie Turner knew she lied. We begin to believe that the reverend defendant is, like the spellunatics, in league with the publishinghouses; but he evidently intends that a new dictionary, more unabridged than any we now dream of, shall be brought forth.

"ONE BUNDRED YEARS AGO to-day" and one hundred years ago to-morrow." This must be a good time for the typefounders who have extra "sorts" for sale. But there is some consolation in the certain prospect that one will not be compelled to read these lines, or anything like them, as the first to greet the eye of the current daily newspaper reader, untl another century shall have elapsed.

CARRUTH is able to enjoy out-door exercise. He walks about with an ounce of lead in his head, a living example of the tenacity with which editors cling to life under a verse circumstances. Should be die within a year Landis, his assailant will be amenable to irdictment for murder. It is currently believed that Carruth is of such a forgiving spirit that he is not anxious to have such an indictment found.

SAID EDGAR A. POE: "To vilify a great man is the readiest way in which a little ' man can himself obtain greatness.'' In this biting sarcasm may be found the creed of the Detective press and the motive which prompts the ambition of the subdetectives among the corps of Washington correspondents to excell each other in manufacturing the most untruthful slanders of leading Republican officials. Not one in ten of them would be known outside of their immediate personal circles, including credulous tailors and good-natured bar-keepers, if it were not for the fact that they have been able to tell lies about their betters. Enviable fame !

entered our office vesterday and declaimed : 'Did you mean to insult the American | consistent act of abandoning the platform people when you derided in such a pu- on which President Grant stands, on which sillanimous way, and compared with he was nominated and elected for two suc-" 'Beautiful Snow' and 'Gentle Spring', cessive terms, and on which his successor " those soul-inspiring lines : 'Here once the embat---'

A PATRIOTIC STUDENT of historic poetry

But he "stood" no longer. Our military rious precedents, and with all its praiseeditor batted him over the head, and the worthy acts of stern adherence to the reechoes were heard around the Washington Monument. ["Curled up upon the floor," that misguided man and enthusiastic brother muttered something about pyrotechnics in a church steeple, and finally rising from his prone condition cried : "How far that little candle throws its beams."

As he withdrew in disgust he remarked You seem to be tired of the poetry of "Lexicord and Conington." Yea, verily

ONE THOMAS SPROTT, aged nine years, and son of Samuel Sprott, of New York, caused the arrest of the latter not long ago for assault and battery, the charge resting upon the undeniable fact that Sprott, senior, boxed Sprott, junior's, ears. Sprott, 82nior, stood trial; Sprott, junior, found it convenient to be absent from the court at the time, and the testimony of Mrs. Sprott induced the judge to send old Sprott to the Tombs for five days. We have concealed these facts from the District public, regardless of our duty as journalists, as long as we possibly can, for fear that their publication might add to the overburdened task of Judge Snell; but a guilty conscience warns us that our sympathies should be extended to the boys as well as to their paternal ancestors. Now, boys, you know your rights, and knowing them, dare you maintain? Don't be rash, however, in starting a subscription for a monument to Tommie Sprott.

THE outside press is busy discussing the "financial depression which exists in Washington." It may be true that money is scarce here, and that, in consequence, business is not so brisk as it should be; but we are far from a realization of the suffering indicated by the extravagant tales told about us. With the open weather of spring building operations have begun, and as the date of tax settlements is passed there is every prospect that business generally will receive a new and vigorous impulse. The sudden and unexpected suspension of four of our largest banks, with the consequent locking up of millions of dollars which had been deposited in their vaults, is the immediate cause of our troubles. But there have been no extensive business failures in consequence, only two firms -one, auctioners, and the other liquor dealers-having succumbed to the pressure. However, confidence is now almost completely restored and the assurance of the future is cheering. In the meantime it will be advisable that the newsmongers examine carefully the statements they telegraph away regarding this matter unless they really intend to misrepresent the situation. The object to be gained by such misrepresentations is not strikingly apparent.

THE Alabama State Journal, alluding to the Hines postal contract frauds, says: "If "Senator Spencer is innocent, he need not fear anything from his traducers. No "honest man need fear what his ene-'mies can say of him. But he had better 'muzzle some of those who pretend to be "his friends." This is very true; but the Journal might have added that his pretended friends are also the enemies of the Republican party. No suspicion existed that Senator Spencer was in any way connected with these frauds until the Detective press declared falsely that Hipes was his partner, and no suspicion exists now where the facts are known. Facts, however, have little to do with the kind of political warfare in which these malignant, black-mailing shekel-hunters delight to engage. They know that Mr. Spencer is not an extravagant man in his habits; that, while he is not wealthy, he enjoys a competency, and that consequently there is no apparent inducement for him to connect himself with a fraudulent operation, while there is every inducement that he shall pursue a contrary course. The mere fact that he recommended Hines for an appointment has no more application to him than it would have to the entire Alabama Republican delegation in Congress, all of whom joined in the recommendation. It is true that he lodged in Hines' house, but it is also true that in no instance, particularly in large cities, is a tenant responsible for the morals of a laudlord.

CLOSE UP THE RANKS FOR THE NATIONAL CONTEST.

Whatever may have been his object, the recent sporadic utterances of Vice President Wilson regarding political affairs have had the effect to inspire the Opposition with a belief that the Republican party is hopelessly divided; that President Grant leads one wing in favor of his own re-election, and that he (Mr. Wilson) leads another, which is disheartened and ready to adopt my makeshift for the recovery of lost ground. The Richmond Whig seems to believe in this analysis, and further, that President Grant, who, it says, "is not a man to be deterred from his purpose by the wishes or wants of others, will be found at the head of the Radical column in 1876. We find no fault with the Whig for its interpretation of Mr. Wilson's meaning, but it seems to have closed its eyes to the fact that the assumption of President Grant's candidacy for re-election is without substantial authority. No doubt Mr. Wilson honestly believes it, and the Whig lso; but if they do they are the victims of a successful attempt at editorial sensationalism begun a little more than a year ago by the New York Herald. They have certainly misunderstood all that has been said on this subject in the columns of THE NATIONAL REPUBLICAN if they have inferred from anything of ours that the Third Term agitation has been authorized; for, as we have repeatedly explained, we have never argued the question except in the abstract. We believe that the election and re-election of competent and honest officials, time without number, will not affect the permanency of our institutions, and would not be a violation of their spirit so long as the untrammeled voice of the people is heard. We also believe that ome man, who is as honest and competent as President Grant has proved himself to be, and who will be certain to prove as consistent in the support of the living principles of the Republican party as he has been, shall be chosen as the candidate of that party. We do not believe that the dangers of the future-dangers which threaten the existence of the Republic, and which constantly demonstrate themselves in the revival of State Rights theories-can be averted in any other way. Mr. Wilson, if he is still true to the party, (and we heartily believe he is,) will not deny the existence of these cangers, no matter what remedy he may seek to avoid them. As a leading Aboitionist in times when to be an Abolitionist was to be disgraced in the eyes of an unthinking majority, and, as a leader in the molding of the war policy and afterwards of the Reconstruction policy of the Government, he stands pledged to-day to exhaust every means at his command in antago-those pledges in the most emphatic way.

In short, every acknowledged leader of the party is committed in the same manner.

and not one of them will dare to do the insults of the war, hedges these men around Voters," have slaughed off, and make a showing of strength in support of the assumption that "the people are tired of war issues:" but the masses of the people are as faithful now to those issues and their results, and as proud of them, as they were when they were first broached, and when treasure and blood was poured out to attain them. The real question is, therefore, will the masses of the party be willing to accept the undefined policy of those who are charged with differing from the Administration, or adhering to the policy which has already been established, is distinctly defined, and may be said to be the consistent and hereditary, so to speak, policy of the party. It is a policy, it must be remembered, that was adopted by Congress when the Republican majority in that body found itself antagonized by President Grant's predecessor. It was the work of such men as Wilson, Blaine, Boutwell, Bingham, Logan, Williams, Conkling,

Howe, Edmunds, Garfield, Dawes, Shella barger, Thad. Stevens, Ben. Butler, and others too numerous to mention. In short, it was the attempt of Congress, over the repeated vetoes of President Johnson, to reconstruct the South on a basis of Equal Justice and Equal Rights to all men. With the single exception of Attorney General Williams, who was then in the Senate from Oregon, no member of President Grant's Administration had anything to do with laying its foundation, or with forming it after the foundation had been laid. No honest man can or will deny these facts, or that President Grant has adhered with the simple characteristics of his nature to that plainly-defined policy. He truly had no policy of his own to advance against that of the people, whose will he acknowledges at all times to be superior authority. We do not advance this argument at this time and in this connection for the purpose of throwing blame upon any man or party of men, or of bestowing credit one way or the other. The people recall these facts as history of such recent occurrence that the details are still fresh in their minds. They are so fresh, in fact, that the people are ready to-day to pronounce their verdict, or rather to repeat the verdict rendered in 1872, and to show to the schemers and dreamers of the Opposition that when national interests are involved there can be no division among the victorious masses of the Republican party, whether President Grant is the candidate or some other man in whom they repose an equal amount

The division, then, if a division exists, is not a matter of principle, but a matter of policy; not a difference which affects the platform of the party, but merely a difference regarding the manner in which the objects for which the platform is framed may be accomplished. It is because the Detective press, and such journals as the Whig, do not go so far in their analysis of the political situation as to consider the motives which control mea and parties that they do not discover the absence of any division based upon principle.
